1. How To Log-In to WeChat, Take Screenshots and Produce .JPG Files (Five Minutes)

Step 1.

On a phone, anywhere in the world, log-in to WeChat as you would any other messaging services (e.g., WhatsApp, Skype, Facebook, Instagram). In this case, log-in into Chong Wang's, Jiaming Li's, and Huaili Zhang's WeChat accounts, each known and identified team members of MineOne who have and use WeChat accounts to communicate with Bitmain and about the bitcoin mining sites (North Range and Campstool) and BCB.

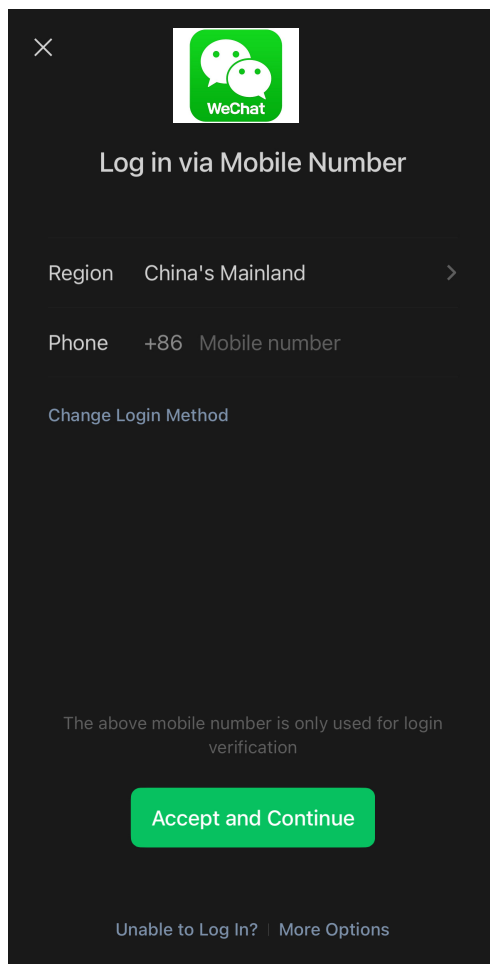

Image from WeChat of business partners Chong Wang and Huaili Zhang in Mainland China from a WeChat message thread that Steve Randall -- a BCB team member --- was a part of before being removed from the message thread (i.e., losing access to the message thread).

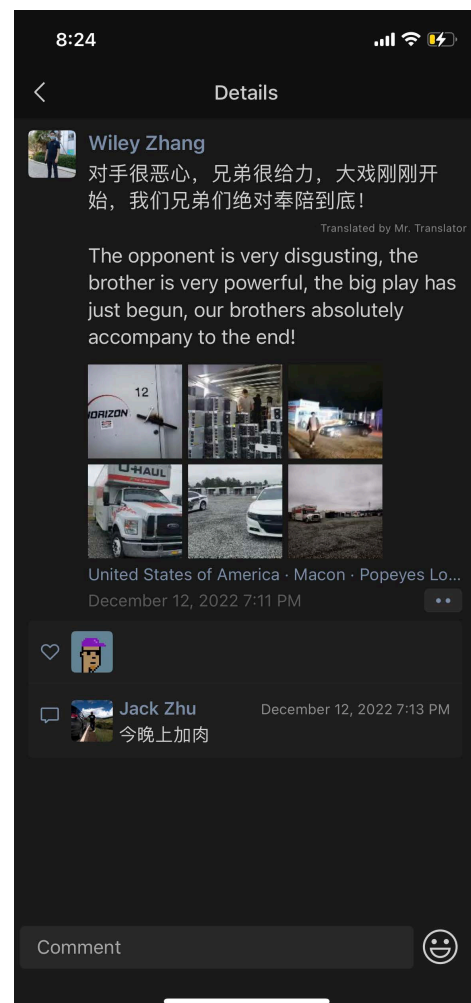

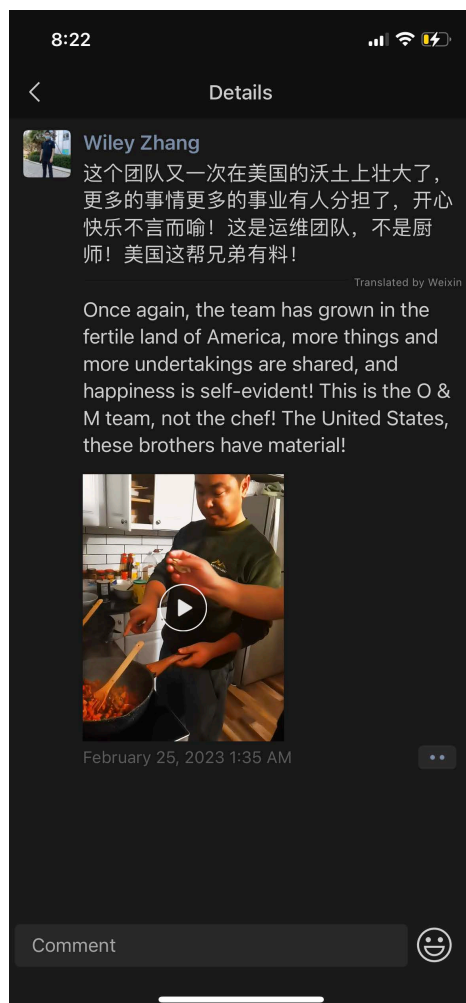

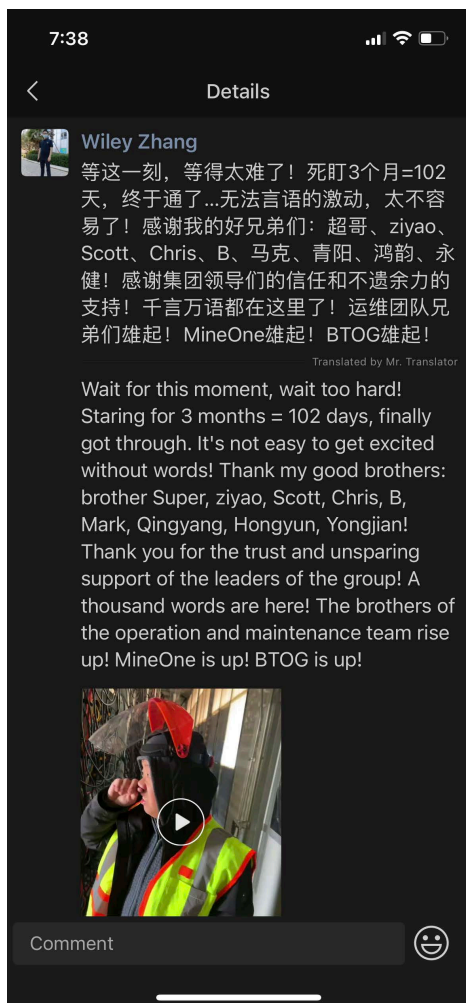

Step 2.

Click on the chat message thread and take a "screenshot" by clicking the appropriate buttons on any iPhone or Android device. The screen capture image will be saved to the phone as a .JPG file. The .JPG file can then be easily bates numbered and produced.

[Below are examples of screen captures that Steve Randall (of BCB) obtained while still a part of a WeChat message thread showing MineOne members talking about the North Range Bitcoin mining site and taking over the Operations and Management team (i.e., and replacing BCB.

Each took a few minutes to access, gather, and send .jpg file to then be bates numbered.]
